Cybersecurity: U.S. Securities And Exchange Commission

As markets grow more global and complex, so too are the threats through cyber intrusion, denial of service attacks, manipulation, misuse by insiders and other cyber misconduct. In the United States, aspects of cybersecurity are the responsibilities of multiple government agencies, including the SEC. Cybersecurity is also a responsibility of every market participant. The SEC is committed to working with federal and local partners, market participants and others to monitor developments and effectively respond to cyber threats
